Your Colloquium Talk

The mathematics colloquium takes place on Mondays at 5.15pm (main slot). There are sometimes colloquium talks on Friday afternoon, too. Before the colloquium, colloquium tea is served at 4.45pm.

In addition, the department invites you to give a pre-colloquium starting at 4pm. The pre-colloquium shall give master and PhD students access to the topic of the main colloquium. Basic notions should be explained and easy examples should be discussed so that students get a first impression of the field and can ask more introductory questions. We would be happy if you accept this invitation!

In your main colloquium talk at 5.15pm, you cannot assume the material presented in the pre-colloquium as the audience will be different. You should expect a very mixed audience including for example algebraists, (numerical) analysts, geometers, mathematical physicists, and probabilists, who might not be at all familiar with your topic. Please therefore explain the fundamental notions (again) in the beginning of your lecture.

The usual schedule would thus be:

4:00 - 4:45pm pre-colloquium for students, including questions,

4:45 - 5:15pm tea with students and members of the department,

5:15 - 6:15pm main talk including questions.

After the talk we will invite you for dinner in one of the many nice restaurants in Tübingen!

Equipment

The colloquium lecture hall N14 has 6 freely movable blackboards (3 behind each other, respectively). There is also a projector and a screen that can be used simultaneously with some of the blackboards.
